Section 3: Special Needs and Foster/Adoption Service

Special Needs adoptions are adoptions of children of all ages, races, and abilities from the child welfare system. Most will have special medical and/or psychological needs that have resulted from their life experience. To get started in foster adoption, you can consult with a community agency that specializes in specific communities, or you can call DSHS directly.

Agencies

These are “child placing agencies” that provide a package of pre- and post-placement services that support the adoptions of children from the foster care system.

For Profit Confidential Intermediary ("C.I.") Services

Contact the King County Adoption Coordinator at (206) 296-9350 or www.kingcounty.gov/courts/familycourt/services/adoption-services.aspx for a list of Confidential Intermediaries who are located throughout Western Washington.

Washington State Law allows, under court supervision, certain individuals ("Confidential Intermediaries") to look at sealed adoption records and contact the birth parents named in them to see if they would like to be contacted by their birth children. King County Superior Court has compiled a Confidential Intermediary ("C.I.") list. The purpose of the list is to provide to the public opportunities to select independent C.I.s who have met minimum qualifications for that role. The list contains individuals who live throughout Western Washington so that an individual may work with someone in their geographic area.

Neither the Committee nor the Washington State Adoption Council recommend or endorse any individual or organization.
